Material Witnesses Released, Barksdale Held in Slaying of Ragsdale.

The five persons held as material witnesses in the fatal shooting early Saturday morning of Russell C. Ragsdale, fireman of the Atlanta Athletic Club, Sunday were released under bond by officers of Clayton county at Jonesboro. William Barksdale, of Savannah, Ga., and Washington, D. C., is being held in the county jail charged with murder following a cornering of Ragsdale. Ragsdale, a great nephew of former Mayor J. N. Ragsdale, was slain following a drinking party which started in Atlanta and ended at a cabin at Lee's mill, near Hanoverville, where he was shot to death, allegedly by Barksdale. Other members of the party were Miss Miriam Winburn, Mrs. Maud Wall and Mrs. Madge Bullard, all waitresses in a downtown hotel coffee shop, who were released under $200 bond. Charlie D. Layton, released under $500 bond, and Bob Osburn, released under $800 bond.

Osburn will be charged with breaking into the cabin where the drinking party was in progress when the Atlanta man was slain, according to Sheriff E. L. Adamson, of Clayton county. W. S. Lee, owner of the lake

Hit-Run Victim Nabs Car But Negro Driver Flees

Four negroes were being sought by police early Monday following a hit-run accident Sunday night in which a car driven and occupied by negroes crashed into two parked machines at North avenue and Spring street, damaging the machines.

John Crowder, 62, North avenue, N. W., owner of one of the cars, jumped onto the running board of the speeding auto and succeeded in shutting off the ignition and bringing it to a stop. The driver and three other negroes leaped from the car and escaped, but Crowder caught a fifth, who gave his name to police as Will Pierce. He was held for investigation and cabin. Will prefer charges, the sheriff said.

Barksdale, who is 36 years old, formerly operated a saloon at the corner of North and Spring streets, was recently sold and he came to Atlanta last Monday. He had known the other members of the party when he resided here previously, he told Sheriff Adamson. He said Ragsdale shot himself as he (Barksdale) knocked him down in a fight which started over the breaking up of the party. There were no direct witnesses to the shooting. Barksdale will come up for trial the third Monday in August, it was said.

Funeral services for Ragsdale were held Sunday afternoon at the chapel of Harry G. Poole, with the Rev. R. C. Huston officiating. Interment was in Crest Lawn cemetery.

He is survived by his wife, three sisters and four brothers.

FIVE PERSONS INJURED IN SERIES OF CRASHES

Four Children, One Negro Man Are Victims; Police Make Two Arrests.

Four children and one negro man were injured in a series of automobile accidents in the city Sunday, according to police and hospital reports. None was hurt seriously.

Louise McCarty, 11 years old, of 417 Formwalt street, received a broken foot and injuries to her right leg when she was struck by a car driven by J. E. Turner, of 431 Formwalt street.

Both the victim and the driver of the car landed in jail as the result of one accident Sunday afternoon. Jim Stiver, negro, of a Williams street address, was slightly injured when he was struck by a machine driven by Andy Durham, negro, of 255 Currier street, at Cowland and Linden avenue. Durham was arrested on a charge of operating a car while under the influence of whisky and locked up.

Following treatment at Grady hospital, Stiver was released on a charge of being drunk. He also was locked up.

Others who received treatment at Grady hospital for slight injuries sustained in automobile accidents Sunday were Harold Reagan, 3 years old, of 720 Whitaker street, cuts about the face and head; Earl Ward, 12, of 619 Linwood avenue, N. E., slight cut and bruises on the legs; and Donald Byers, 16, of 831 Ponce de Leon avenue, lacerations and abrasions on the left leg. They were treated and released.

The destination of much of the equipment was the state police training school at Wilburth, near Trenton.

Colonel and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh escaped the moving scene for they are now staying at the Dwight Morrow estate in Englewood, a two-hour automobile trip from Hopewell.

So that the colonel may be in close touch with the authorities an enlarged police station was ordered set up at Alpine, near Englewood.

JUDGE HITS ATTORNEY FOR POLITICAL CHARGES

HARRIS, Ky., May 29.—(AP)—Circuit Judge D. C. Jones today administered a verbal lashing to former Senator J. M. Robison, his old foe, for 21 men facing charges of murder in connection with the Evaris battle, denying charges made by Robison that ten weeks' special trial of the trial of the labor cases was a political move to prevent him from active campaigning in his congressional race.

The flare-up between Jones and Robison came on the eve of the trials of minors and union officials for the slaying of two deputy sheriffs in a commissary clerk on May 5, 1931. The special term will open tomorrow morning with Judge T. B. McGreggor on the bench. Judge Jones holding court in Bell county.

Reed Assails 'Extravagance' Of G. O. P., Asks Dry Repeal

WASHINGTON, May 29.—(AP)—In an interview bristling with criticism of governmental "extravagance" on unnecessary public works, former Senator James A. Reed, candidate for the democratic presidential nomination, today outlined a five-point program to help the country tide over hard times.

Halting "wasteful expenditures for non-productive public enterprises," repeal of prohibition, enactment of a moderate sales tax in lieu of some of those now being considered, lowering of tariffs and reciprocity agreements with foreign nations to keep them low, and a reduction of taxes as soon as possible.

The tall, silver-haired Missourian, here to make a Memorial Day address tomorrow at Arlington, also took time to tell his views on the "extravagance" of the G. O. P. and "dry" repeal.

Reed said "non-productive" buildings at this time, such as the new palatial commerce department and the "senatorial garage" on Capitol Hill, merely waste "money out of productive enterprise where labor is employed and sinks it into non-productive, interest-bearing ventures of various kinds."

As one means of economy, he said, the "commerce, agriculture and labor" department could be very largely done away with.

Why most of them in Arthur Hyde's headquarters, he said, "don't know how to plant a row of corn."

Reed emphasized it was "not any business of the federal government to undertake such projects."

"We are not conducting an alarm house. We haven't got any emergency form of government. The best way to get things straightened out is by saving money and levying taxes so employers can get back on their feet and employ men."

Brother From Georgia Visiting Lieut. Massie

WINCHESTER, Ky., May 20.—(AP)—Lieutenant Thomas Massie, recently freed following his conviction in the Honolulu lynching case, held a reunion here today with members of his family. Thirty persons attended the celebration, among them being Massie's brother, William, Columbus (Ga.) newspaperman.

Lieutenant Massie and his wife, Mrs. Thalia Massie, said they will leave tomorrow by motor for New York to visit Mrs. Massie's parents, Major and Mrs. Granville Fortescue.

They plan to remain in New York ten days and then motor to California, where Massie is to report for naval duty.

COURT REDUCTIONS

URGED BY PITNER

WASHINGTON, Ga., May 20.—A reduction in the number of judicial circuits and the salaries of superior judges was urged by Senator J. M. Pitner before the second meeting of the Wilkes County Taxpayers' League at the courthouse Saturday.

The recommendation was a part of the report of a committee composed of Senator Pitner, C. Howard Orr, a former representative from Wilkes in the legislature, and J. E. Stodol, editor of the News-Reporter, named at the initial meeting of the league to ascertain where the burden of state taxes had been reduced through the elimination of every unnecessary expense, extravagance, waste, and the reduction of salaries.

The report further urged the reduction of the department of game and fish and the reduction in numbers and salaries of departmental employees, by one-third.

The report concluded that it was not desirable to cut expenditures for highways, schools and pensions, requiring $27,000,000 of the $32,000,000 annual expenditures, but contended that the remaining $5,000,000 could be cut in half.

W. A. Stinson, of the committee having the same object as to city and county administration, reported a sizeable reduction and corrections had already been made by county board of commissioners, and that the city would be given an opportunity to indicate the extent of their co-operation in the demands of the taxpayers' league before formal recommendations were made.

WILLIAMS APPEAL

TO BE HEARD SOON

AUGUSTA, Ga., May 20.—Hearing on the appeal for a new trial, filed by J. M. Williams, former Rochelle, Ga., minister, will be given by Judge A. L. Franklin, of superior court here this week. Trial on charge of killing his son, Grady Raiford Williams, young son, the ex-minister was given a life sentence at the November second trial being held, following a mistrial in October, last. The appeal will consume some time in hearing as the record covers many pages of typewritten matter.

Preparation of the proceedings of the trial has been under way for several months, the unusually voluminous testimony of more than a hundred witnesses being included in the court record. In the meantime the defendant remains in Richmond county jail.

MORE COURAGE NEEDED

IN CRISIS, SAYS DR. FEW

CONWAY, Ark., May 20.—(AP)—Expressing the opinion in "notion of deflation is more moral than financial," Dr. William Preston Few, president of Duke University, in an address today at the annual college commencement exercises asserted the "present emergency represents a race between education and catastrophe."

"Unless America and other nations of the world can produce a balanced civilization, complete ruin may impend," he said. "We may be entering another dark age century. There is no quick remedy. We need not hope to set about a cure in a day's time."

"We need not attempt a gradual process of shifting emphasis from what one does and what one knows to what one is."

"This emergency," Dr. Few said, "developed from emphasis upon relatively unimportant things. We need more aestheticism, more self denial and more courage. We need more than 'take the easy way.'" and signed, to be destroyed by one of the signatories, but once France's rights are acknowledged in the above question, this country will bring two of their application the largest spirit of concession.

"Nobody doubts that Germany cannot pay under the present circumstances. In any case, we must renounce unconditional annuities for the long term. The country's wisdom suggests that the best solution would be a general liquidation of all war debts—European as well as American. In other words, universal cancellation."

"Nevertheless, in order to forestall the possibility that Germany may be relieved of its debt by an interior debt and soon become an overwhelming commercial competitor, and that the creditor countries would thus be certain financial processes can be provided which automatically will come into play."

"For example, a sort of compensating fund might be established. In all interested countries would be treated equally and it would be maintained between them for the purpose of economic fair play."

LE TEMPS SRES NEED

OF HELP FROM U. S.

PARIS, May 20.—(AP)—The newspaper Le Temps in a leading article today declared it was impossible to solve such problems as disarmament, reparations, debts, and the "new economic order," without help of the United States.

The article drew a conclusion of hope that the troubles the United States is undergoing will recall its rulers to present realities.

The article, entitled "The American Crisis," said Le Temps trusted that the distress would show the United States government "that for a nation, however powerful, there is no salvation possible except in solidarity and the sane practice of widespread international collaboration."

The article deplored party strife at Washington before the November elections, declaring that those are bad conditions for taking energetic resolutions.

The weekly financial review of the same paper under the signature of Frederick J. J. expressed faith in the American dollar.

PARTY RECOGNITION

SOUGHT FOR CABINET

PARIS, May 20.—(UP)—The "price" of socialist participation in the government which Edouard Herriot is scheduled to form was an issue today when the 26th national socialist congress convened in Jean Jaures hall.

The outcome of the congress, which will continue until the new parliament opens Tuesday, may decide whether Herriot's radical-socialist party will join with the socialists in forming a left wing cabinet or will turn to the right-center for support.

Herriot must face a complex situation in choosing the support for his government, which succeeds Andre Tardieu's right-center regime. But his position, which is between the socialists and the more conservative center factions, enables him to draw moderate support from either side of the chamber.

The radical-socialist party itself is split; the socialist party is facing a period of bitter controversy and the outcome probably will hinge on the question of policy in regard to disarmament and finances.

INDUSTRY CLARIFIES DECISION ON DEBATE

Nix Follows Says Majority of Students Do Not Favor
Talmadge.

ATHENS, Ga., May 20.—Phil C. McDuffie Jr., president of the Young People's Nix-for-Governor Club, of Athens, today issued a statement which he said he hoped would clarify the impression that he had made in the minds of the students at the University of Georgia were supporters of Eugene Talmadge, commissioner of agriculture, in his race for governor.

Mr. McDuffie's statement followed publication of news reports on a debate conducted by the Talmadge and Nix supporters, and Abit Nix, Athens lawyer, who also is a gubernatorial candidate.

"A few days ago The Constitution reported that Phi Kappa Literary Society at the University of Georgia went to record as favoring Eugene Talmadge for governor in preference to Abit Nix. The vote, taken at the close of a debate between Talmadge and Nix supporters, was 23 to 3."

"Duncan Graham, of McRae, was the debater who espoused Mr. Talmadge. A lengthy account of the debate, while nothing was said on behalf of Mr. Nix, the story stated that 'up at the University of Georgia Mr. Talmadge has been voted a three-to-one favorite over Mr. Nix.' This statement, as far as it went, is correct. However, the report pointed out that there were only 10 students at the meeting where Mr. Talmadge was voted a three-to-one favorite."

"Mr. Graham's entire speech was published in The Constitution. It was a good speech, but it was a speech for winning it published in its entirety. It certainly demonstrates his ability to make the most of any subject he undertakes regarding the handicaps that subject may have. The manner in which he effectively used his oratorical tricks on the audience is worthy of an older and more experienced campaign speaker. The decision at the debate was in reality a tribute to Mr. Graham's skill as a debater instead of an actual judgment on the merits of the two candidates."

"As to Mr. Talmadge's love for the farmer, and ability to help him, I recall that when he was running against J. J. Brown for his present job, Mr. Talmadge made much of his love for the farmer. He promised that if elected commissioner of agriculture the farmers would be given a break. This is a promise Mr. Talmadge has not carried out. Since he became commissioner of agriculture, cotton has dropped to six cents a pound and the farmers are practically bankrupt. If Mr. Talmadge's way of 'helping the farmer' is Mr. Talmadge's way of helping the farmer, then why has he done it as commissioner of agriculture? Is the fault in the office or the man? It must be one or the other. If the man, why has he not been able to get the cotton price up? If the office, it is useless, then why doesn't Mr. Talmadge, who pretends to possess such a high degree of courage, advocate its abolition? If he did that, the state would be saved the expense of its operation, and Mr. Talmadge would then be really serving the farmer."

TRADE DISCUSSION

The experience of all countries in the last few months particularly ought to induce every nation to take broader views than some of them have done hitherto.

The mail said it understood the suggestion for broadening the basis of the conference, which is scheduled to meet in London on June 16, will be the main topics Prime Minister MacDonald discussed with Secretary of State Stimson in a recent transatlantic telephone conversation.

Ambassador Andrew W. Mellon also is likely to be connected with the new development the newspaper said, adding that it believed that American ambassador had discussed the proposal with the British government.

MacDonald, the newspaper said, has been greatly benefited by his stay at his home in Lossiemouth, where he went to rest after an operation on one of his eyes. The correspondent reported that he was anxious to return to London, was fully determined to go to Lausanne and was immersed in some negotiations for a conference, to which he attaches the greatest importance.

U. S. IS NOT EXPECTED TO ENTER DISCUSSIONS

WASHINGTON, May 20.—(AP)—Although the United States is expected to watch with interest any international discussion of trade, there was no indication here tonight that this government would be drawn into such discussions in connection with the Lausanne reparations conference as proposed by Prime Minister MacDonald.

This country's position has been that it is for Europe to consider reparations as the United States had no reparations, and there has been nothing to indicate that even broadening of the Lausanne meeting as proposed by MacDonald would modify that hands-off position.

Publisher of the British prime minister's plan reopened speculation over whether it was a subject touched upon in the telephone conversation last week between him and Secretary Stimson. Official sources, however, gave no intimation of previous knowledge of the MacDonald proposal and made no comment.

Stimson, who was at his Long Island home over the week-end, has confirmed talking with the British official but the substance of the conversation has been kept strictly secret.

An independent international conference has been advocated in various quarters here since the decline in foreign trade began, and an international meeting to consider bringing tariff regulations of the various countries into actual force was one of the proposals in the democratic house tariff bill recently vetoed by President Hoover.

AUGUSTA HIGH SCHOOL

EXERCISES THIS WEEK

AUGUSTA, Ga., May 20.—Graduation exercises in the grammar, high schools and the junior college of Augusta will be conducted this week. More than 250 graduates from the high schools receiving their certificates and about 50 graduates from the junior college getting their diplomas. Bobby Jones Shoots Brilliant 66 in Lead Benefit Foursome

MASTER GOLFER NERVE UNDER PAR AT EAST LAKE

Bob and Sargent Defeat Yates and Ball, 5 and 4.

Bobby Jones is still the master of them all on the golf course, and Sunday afternoon on the No. 2 East Lake course, Jones shot a brilliant 66, five under par, to lead the way in a 5-and-4 victory over Ernie Ball and Charlie Yates. Jones was paired with George Sargent, East Lake pro, in an exhibition match for the benefit of the American Olympic games funds.

It was the second time that Jones has carried a 66, which equaled his own course record, in setting the pace in an exhibition foursome on the No. 2 East Lake course.

Jones was not alone in defeating the youngsters, for Sargent, who won the National open title in 1906, came through to win one hole, and halve two others, with birdies as Jones was shooting his own brief record, which equaled par for the brief period.

Yates second, the Georgia Tech freshman, shared second honor with the veteran Sargent in the medal round with 71's, which equaled par, and Ball was several strokes back.

In his great round, Jones carried three birdies on the 18th hole to finish two under par as he was one over on the ninth, and came back with three birdies on the back nine, Jones one-putted five of the 18 greens and missed several other putts by inches as he rolled to the edge of the cup and stopped short. His driving was consistent and steady. He pulled a second shot out of the rough into the rough on the ninth, to go one over par, and a brassie on No. 11, which cleared the creek was one of his best shots of the day.

Yates made two of the best drives of the afternoon on the No. 2 course, that have been seen on the No. 2 course on the ninth and tenth holes, particularly the first, which was nearly 345 yards.

Sargent was consistent with his short iron game and shot one of his best rounds.

Jones' card:

Reviewing the Shows

Swift Action Features

Drama on Fox Screen

"The Trial of Vivienne Ware," the feature picture at the Fox this week, is the story of a young woman of social parts who is falsely placed in the position of a murderer, is tried, acquitted, and, presumably, marries the attorney for the defense whom she would have married at the start if she hadn't been sidetracked by the villain.

The theme is familiar, but none the less well done for that. Personally, this reviewer doesn't choose plays in which gunmen shoot and are shot—in one instance on the ledge of a skyscraper—and the heroine is browbeaten by a vicious prosecuting attorney and insulted by a New York detective. But, believe it or not, many intelligent people like plenty of action. At the Fox they will get an eye-ful.

At times the tumult reminded one of the Seabury-Walker tilt in New York. Joan Bennett, who takes the title role, goes untroubled through gunfire, knife-throwing, character assassination and vituperation. In fact, Miss Bennett doesn't change her expression often, and she is beautiful, even more beautiful than she is talented.

Zasu Pitts as the sob sister of the tabloids who turns round announcer at the trial, and makes gestures before the microphone which she describes the defendant's costume, and tributes an excellent piece of characterization.

Exceptional vaudeville is shown in the Fanchon & Marco act, "Tin Types." This has as its background the manners and customs of the gay nineties, and is a swift-moving series of novelties. The Aaron Sisters' quartet got several encores, as did the Padewski act.

Add good short subjects, Leide's orchestra and Al Evans at the organ and you have at the Fox more than three hours of solid entertainment.

Robinson Scores Again

As Chinese Hatchet-Man

Versatile Edward G. Robinson, traversing a celluloid path through the rigors of gang warfare and the equally hard life of a scandal sheet editor, comes to us this week in the role of a Chinese hatchet man, the honorable executioner of his tongue.

If Mr. Robinson's previous efforts have been received with approval by the multitude of movie fans, to what extent must the theatergoer now applaud to congratulate him properly upon his latest exceptionally fine performance, "The Hatchet Man," showing this week at the Georgia theater, affords a good actor a splendid opportunity, of which he makes the most.

Dainty Loretta Young turns up her pretty eyes with invisible adhesive tape to become an equally pretty Chinese girl in love with the executioner of her father in a tong war. Into the love nest of the hatchet man and his bride comes an interloper who stands in the heart of the little woman—there's the makings of a good story, and none of the dramatic effect is lost in the telling.

"Moonlight and Cactus," an enjoyable farce, features Tom Patricola, whose feet are as nimble as can be. Henry Santrey and his band, with "Up On the Farm," provide additional comedy.

The serious side of the program includes Lew White with an organ prelude based on "Show Boat," and Pathe News. The newscast touches a bit on the comic with a laughable sketch featuring Victor Moore, "candidate for vice president."

Sudden Love

By ELIZABETH SANXAY HOLDING

STORY BY
 Emmie Sully spends her forlorn young life between the office, where she is an inefficient typist, and a dismal home. The widowed Mrs. Sully loves her children blindly, but doesn't know how to direct their spiritual or physical needs. Law, a year older than Emmie, is a misfit in her company. Cynthia, the oldest, has been deserted by her husband, Jimmy Considine, a crook lawyer, forces Law, whom he has in his power, to introduce his sister, Emmie, starved for beauty and chance, to a young playboy, Mr. Marriott. Then she meets Michael Marriott, a handsome young playboy. It's love at first sight. She feels his need of her is real. Returning home one evening, Emmie finds Michael waiting for her. He'd been drinking heavily. NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

INSTALMENT XIII.
 "Go away, Lew!" she said, sternly. "You can't—"
 His blue eyes were alight with anger; his thin face was grim.
 "Who's this?" he repeated.
 Marriott rose unsteadily to his feet.
 "Marriott's name," he said. "And who are you?"
 "It's my brother, Michael. Lew, go away."
 "No," said Lew. "Not till I've thrown this fellow out."
 "Lew! What's the matter with you?"
 "You're a good one to ask. After what you've done. God! I wish you'd died a year ago. . . I wish you were dead now."
 "You've got a very impolite brother," said Marriott.
 "I don't know who this new fellow is," Lew went on. "I suppose I'm a fool to care. What does it matter after you've sold yourself to Considine?"
 Marriott made a sudden lunge forward, but Emmie caught his arm.
 "Stop!" she said. "Let him alone, Michael!"
 It was the first time in her life that she had spoken with authority, and her tone, the look on her face checked both the men.
 "Lew," she said, "you're saying horrible, wicked things. You don't know what you're talking about."
 "Don't! Don't you promise Considine to go out to that roadhouse with him on Sunday?"
 "Now look here!" said Marriott. "It's time some one taught you something. It doesn't matter what Emmie's promised, or where she goes, or whom she goes with. Whatever she does, she's lovely and good. You ought to know it."
 "Clear out, you drunken clown!" said Lew.
 "Clown, eh?" said Marriott, and his dark face grew sorrowful. "Maybe so."
 She could not endure that.
 "Lew!" she began, and stopped. For she could see it was of no use to appeal to him now. He was white and shaken with anger, and with something more than anger.
 "Come on, Michael!" she said. "Where are you going?" cried Lew.
 She looked at him steadily.
 "I won't answer you," she said. "I won't talk to you at all now."
 "And you won't go with that drunken clown, either?" he shouted.
 "I'll see to that!"
 Again Marriott took a step forward, with an ugly smile.
 "No," said Emmie. "Please!"
 The door opened and Mrs. Sully entered. She was wearing her faded and bedraggled dressing gown; her hair was untidy. But she came in like an empress—calm, erect, sorrowful and august. She glanced at Marriott, and at her son, and turned to Emmie.
 "Emmie, my pet?" she said.
 "I'm going out, Mother, with Mr. Marriott."
 "You're not!" said Lew.
 "Lew," said Mrs. Sully, "you must not worry your sister."
 They were mild, singularly inadequate words, yet they had their effect. Lew looked at her, then he turned on his heel and left the room.
 "Don't be too late, pet!" said Mrs. Sully, with a smile for her child and for Marriott, and then she, too, left. Marriott sat down on the sofa again, his head in his hands, his eyes closed.
 "Come on, Michael!" said Emmie. "Like to rest—little while," he murmured.
 "You can't, Michael dear. Not here. Come on! Please get up, Michael! Please try!"
 He responded to her entreaty: he rose, stood awfully a little holding to the back of the sofa. She could not meet his eyes; her heart was leaden. This was so sorry a love. They went down the stairs, slowly, Marriott holding to the rail.
 "Emmie," he said, "where are we going?"
 "You'd better go home, dear."
 "No."
 "I'll go with you, Michael."
 In the taxi he fell asleep, with his head on her shoulder.
 Emmie wept as if her heart would break. She loved Michael, and she wanted the love to be a glorious thing, and it was what it was. When the cab stopped before his apartment house Marriott did not wake, and she got out to fetch Twining to help her. She rang the bell, rang and ran, kept her finger on it. No one could have slept through that. She went back to the cab and shook Marriott until he opened his eyes.
 "Michael! Give me your key!"
 "No key," he murmured. "Always forget key."
 She sat down beside him, because her knees felt weak.
 "Michael! Michael, you've got to answer me! Have you any money?" He fumbled for his wallet. She reached in his breast pocket and took it out, turned on the light inside the cab to see what was there. She found an amount of money that surprised her, ten dollar bills, twenties. "But I don't know," she said to herself.
 The taxi driver sat solid as a rock, paying no attention to what went on inside his cab.
 "I don't know where to take him," she thought. "They wouldn't let him into a good hotel, without any luggage, and the way he is. . ."
 All she knew were the names of the big hotels, the Ritz, the Pennsylvania, both politically prominent and backed there, or in any other hotel, except

THIRD-PARTY DRIVE OPENED IN ILLINOIS

CHICAGO, May 29.—(AP)—A third-party movement—directed by one of the state's best-known attorneys—is under way in Illinois.
 The leader is W. W. O'Brien, defense attorney in more than 200 murder trials over a score of years, but never before a participant in politics. His party has named "the people's ticket," and his platform he announced today as "better government at a lower cost, and repeal of the prohibition laws."
 As his party's candidate for governor, O'Brien will oppose the regular party nominees in the November election. They are former Governor Lem Small, republican, and Probate Judge Henry Horner, of Chicago, democrat, both politically prominent and backed there, or in any other hotel, except Little Helps in Cleaning.

 When washing cotton quilts, beat them lightly occasionally with the carpet beater while they are drying on the line. This will make them nice and fluffy.

To Clean White Window Shades
 Use baking soda moistened with water. Apply with clean, damp cloth and rub thoroughly over shade, particularly where there may be finger marks or other stains on the shade. Then rub over the shade with another clean damp cloth.

Spread the shade on any flat surface, either on a table or on floor, and allow to dry. Will look like new.

Use Up Leftover Jelly.
 Small bits of tart jelly may be melted over hot water and whipped into the dessert or into a meat gravy or served on pancakes or waffles.

Gravied Eggs.
 Put a little brown gravy into a well-buttered, shallow pan. Place in oven until gravy boils, then break into it as many eggs as will lie side by side. Sprinkle seasoned bread crumbs mixed with melted butter, salt and pepper over all and replace dish in oven until eggs are set. Then take up eggs carefully and place on rounds of toast, pour gravy over and serve hot.

HOM-Grown Poultry Enables Customers To Raise Chickens

During the past 60 days many of those who have reasons for passing 46 Pryor street, N. E., have noticed that extensive alterations were being made. Especially was this so on the inside of a building which began to take on all the appearance of a southeastern headquarters for some large industrial corporation.

This method of raising young chickens will also give great numbers of people employment in raising chickens and in caring for the various buildings, for the meat of these chickens far surpasses the common variety of chickens raised in the city. Clubs, popular restaurants and par-
